Abstract	The increase of refugee status claiming immigrants in Canada has led to a review of the immigration policy concerning this group. This report looks at the weaknesses of current legislation which is linked to the Geneva Convention and its Protocol, studying Canada's past adherence to the rights afforded under its protection. Also discusses public and government opinion on support for a humanitarian and generous refugee policy and questions of balancing efficiency with procedural fairness to claimants. Gives a chronology of events since 1969.

Résumé	Le processus de reconnaissance du statut de réfugié au sens de la Convention de Genève, tel qu'il est énoncé dans la Loi sur l'immigration, sert à déterminer si les personnes qui revendiquent ce statut y ont effectivement droit et peuvent bénéficier de la protection accordée aux réfugiés au sens de la Convention. Ce processus s'est avéré inadéquat, tant au point de vue juridique que pratique. INTRODUCTION

Microlog: Canadian Research Index puts all of Canada's hard-to-find government and research literature at your fingertips. This monthly indexing, abstracting and document delivery service covers all levels of government in Canada, as well as institutions receiving research grants. Most titles included in Microlog are available in either paper or microfiche format. Combined with a microfiche collection, the Microlog Service is a powerful tool for finding Canadian report publications. The unique Microlog Accession Number is the key to immediate retrieval of any document.

SCOPE

Among other documents, Microlog includes research papers in physical, natural and social sciences, policy papers, important statistics, and annual reports. Every effort is made to ensure the currency of the index. For instance, documents appearing in the Checklist of Canadian Government Publications are delivered by Microlog approximately two months after publication of the list.

LANGUAGE POLICY

Documents issued in English or French are indexed and abstracted in the language of publication, while bilingual documents are indexed and abstracted in both languages.

SOURCES AND COVERAGE

Federal Documents: The Microlog editors review all checklists issued by the Canadian Government Publishing Centre and order every document relevant to the service. Except for serials, maps, pamphlets, and manuals, all monographs covered by the Federal Depository Plan are included in the index. Also, a special effort is made to track down elusive but important titles which do not appear in the lists.

Microlog offers a special collection of documents published by the Federal Government but not issued through the Federal Depository Plan. These titles, available to subscribers as the Non-Depository Publications collection, are indicated in the Titles section by a bullet (•). Microlog is also the direct distributing agent for many government bodies.

Provincial Documents: Depository arrangements with several provincial libraries have been established to ensure that Microlog subscribers receive all publications from those provinces. Where no depository arrangement exists, all publications lists issued by the province are reviewed for acquisitions.

Municipal Documents: Since these titles are very difficult to obtain, the Microlog editors make special efforts to include publications from municipal sources.

ACCESS

The Index provides access by subject, corporate or individual author, and series title.

The full Microlog file from 1979 to date, consisting of almost 50,000 records, is available online through Can/OLE. This is an ideal way to locate hard-to-find reports which may then be ordered directly online through the Can/DOCS service. Contact: Can/OLE Client Services, CISTI, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0S2.

FEATURES

Microlog comprises the following sections:

1. Titles and abstracts: A full bibliographic citation and a descriptive abstract for each title.
2. Name Index: Access by personal author, corporate author, and conference name.
3. Series Titles: Lists by title and number all reports in series in the service; series are available as an ongoing subscription or retrospective collection.
4. Subject Index: Descriptors based on Library of Congress and Canadiana Subject Headings are assigned to each document. A cross-referencing structure assists searchers.
5. Microfiche collections: Lists contents of each fiche collection for quick reference. These collections can be used as current awareness lists in broad subject areas to notify users of new acquisitions. This section is included in the annual cumulation as a separate fiched product.

MICROLOG AND CANADIAN STATISTICS INDEX

Statistical Material: The Canadian Statistics Index (CSI) provides further access to statistical material contained in Microlog monographs and special or annual reports. The CSI identification number has been included with the Microlog citation for the convenience of subscribers to the CSI fiche collection.

Annual Reports: Storage of annual reports in a single sequence has been a problem for clients in the past. The CSI numbers for annual reports are now listed in the bibliographic citation and appear on the microfiche header of each report, to make such sequencing possible.

DOCUMENT DELIVERY

Institutions may subscribe to complete or partial collections of the documents in Microlog. Individual copies on microfiche or paper reprint may be ordered through Micromedia's Document Delivery Service. To order, please contact:

INTRODUCTION

Microlog: Index de recherche du Canada met à votre disposition toutes les publications du gouvernement et les travaux de recherche difficiles à se procurer. Combiné aux collections sur microfiches, le service Microlog constitue un outil très efficace pour retrouver les publications des différents gouvernements du Canada, ainsi que celles des organismes qui reçoivent des subventions pour la recherche. Microlog est aussi un service de livraison de documents, sur microfiches ou sous forme imprimée.

CONTENU

Microlog contient entre autres des recherches en sciences physiques, naturelles et sociales, des énoncés de politique, des statistiques et des rapports annuels. Par l'intermédiaire du service Microlog, on peut obtenir les documents qui figurent sur la Liste des publications du gouvernement du Canada environ deux mois après leur parution sur cette liste.

POLITIQUE LINGUISTIQUE

Les ouvrages publiés en français ou en anglais sont indexés et résumés dans la langue de publication; les ouvrages bilingues sont traités dans les deux langues.

SOURCES

Publications fédérales: Les rédacteurs de Microlog examinent les listes émises par le Centre d'édition du gouvernement du Canada et commandent les documents pertinents. En dehors des publications en série, cartes, brochures et manuels, toutes les monographies régies par le Programme de dépôt du gouvernement fédéral figurent dans l'index, ainsi que des ouvrages importants ne figurant pas sur les listes.

Microlog propose aussi une collection spéciale de publications fédérales non déposées, identifiées par un point (•) dans la section Titres et résumés. Microlog est aussi l'agent de diffusion de nombreux organismes gouvernementaux.

Publications provinciales: Des ententes de dépôt ont été conclues avec plusieurs bibliothèques provinciales pour que les abonnés de Microlog reçoivent toutes les publications de ces provinces. Lorsqu'aucune entente n'existe, les listes de publications émises par les provinces sont examinées afin d'acquérir les documents.

Publications municipales: Ces ouvrages étant difficiles à se procurer, les rédacteurs de Microlog redoublent d'ardeur pour les inclure dans l'index.

ACCÈS

L'index imprimé est bilingue et les publications sont répertoriées par sujet, par auteur (collectivité et personne physique) et par titre de collection.

Le fichier complet de Microlog, de 1979 à aujourd'hui, contient près de 50,000 notices et est accessible sur

Can/OLE. Il s'agit d'un moyen idéal pour mettre la main sur des rapports difficiles à trouver qu'on peut commander par l'intermédiaire du service Can/DOCS. À ce propos, veuillez vous adresser au Service à la clientèle Can/OLE, ICIST, Ottawa (Ontario), K1A 0S2.

ORGANISATION DE L'INDEX

Microlog est divisé en cinq sections:

1. Titres et résumés: tous les titres sont catalogués et accompagnés d'un résumé descriptif.
2. Index des noms: donne un accès par auteur, collectivité-auteur et titre de conférence.
3. Titres de collections: tous les rapports publiés en série sont classés par titre et numéro. Ces collections peuvent être commandées individuellement.
4. Index des matières: les descripteurs permettent de trouver facilement les publications pertinentes; un réseau de renvois facilite la recherche.
5. Collections de microfiches: chaque collection apparaît dans une section séparée pour faciliter la recherche. Ces listes peuvent aussi servir à renseigner les usagers sur les nouveautés. Dans la refonte, cette section est insérée sous forme de microfiches.

MICROLOG ET L'INDEX DES STATISTIQUES DU CANADA

Données statistiques: L'Index des statistiques du Canada (CSI) constitue une autre source de référence sur les statistiques contenues dans certaines publications indexées dans Microlog. Celles-ci ont un numéro d'ordre spécial qui est inclus dans la référence bibliographique.

Rapports annuels: Afin de rendre le classement des rapports annuels plus facile, le numéro d'ordre CSI correspondant à ces documents figure maintenant dans les références bibliographiques et est inscrit sur les en-têtes de microfiches.

LIVRAISON DE DOCUMENTS

On peut s'abonner à l'ensemble ou à certaines des collections de documents de Microlog. On peut également commander des reproductions de documents sur microfiches ou sur papier par l'intermédiaire du service de livraison de documents de Micromedia. Pour commander, communiquer avec:

Sample CRI Search

“How can a person from a foreign country qualify for refugee status in Canada?”

The researcher can search in CRI as in any library catalogue - by subject, author and title.
Because the index is bilingual, searching can be done in English or in French.

Recherche type avec IRC

“Comment une personne d'un pays étranger peut-elle demander le statut de réfugié au Canada?”

La méthode de recherche dans IRC est la même que dans une bibliothèque, puisque les documents sont indexés par auteur, par sujet et par titre. L'index étant bilingue, la consultation peut se faire en français ou en anglais.

STEP 2/DEUXIÈME ÉTAPE

A unified search strategy

The search strategy should include all the monthly issues. Start with the most recent issue and work back.
Monthly issues are cumulated annually.

STEP 3/TROISIÈME ÉTAPE

Retrieve the publication

Each bibliographic citation gives a full description of the relevant document. Locate the document by the microfiche number in the library's collection or order from Micromedia. Individual publications are available for purchase on microfiche or paper. The bibliographic description provides publisher source information.

Repérer la publication

Chaque notice bibliographique comprend une description complète du document; celui-ci peut être repéré grâce au numéro de microfiche de la bibliothèque; sinon, il faut le commander à Micromedia. On peut se procurer les monographies sur microfiches ou sur papier. La description bibliographique comporte également des indications sur l'éditeur.

Responding to a fundamental reordering of international affairs and the need to confront important economic realities at home, the Prime Minister announced in November 1993 a comprehensive review of Canadian defence policy. In February 1994, a special joint committee of the Senate and House of Commons was established to consult Canadians on all aspects of this issue. This document outlines the new defence policy. It examines the following points: international environment; domestic considerations; combat-capable forces; protection of Canada; Canada-United States defence cooperation; contributing to international security; and, implementing defence policy.

1994 GTA residential land inventory survey : final report

Ottawa : Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation ; Toronto : Ministry of Housing, 1994. iii, 44 p. : ill.
MICROLOG 95-02406 (1 fiche)

This survey was initiated to monitor the supply of land for residential development in the regional municipalities of Durham, Halton, Metro Toronto, Peel, and York, and was conducted in early 1994, based on information in municipal records as of 1 January 1994. The survey provides data on housing unit supply by stage in the development approval process in the Greater Toronto Area (GTA) to identify potential land supply problems and to foster cooperation between various levels of government and industry. The report estimates the potential duration of unit supply based on a low, medium, and high absorption scenario. It also provides an analysis of current economic conditions in the area and their possible impacts on the housing market.

Aboriginal people around the world have expressed frustration with their lack of both political representation in and influence on government operations. Efforts have been made in several jurisdictions to increase the political representation, and thus the decision-making power, of aboriginal people. This paper reviews government activity, both outside and within Canada, aimed at providing aboriginal people with some form of special political representation.

Describes a small-scale research study of academically successful students in grades 5 to 8 in 3 Toronto inner city schools. Aims to answer the questions: what distinguishes these children from their less successful peers; and what characteristics of their home environments, their own range of adaptive responses, and their personal networks contribute to their success? Uses interviews with students, parents and teachers for a sample of 30 students and a control group of 8 students. Summarizes the way teachers describe the students, parents' and students' views of the value of education, strategies of successful students, parental practices and strategies, parent/teacher and parent/school links, and implications for schools and classroom teachers.

This report addresses the universal accessibility of four specific Parks Canada sites in the Georgian Bay Island National Park and Trent-Severn Waterway. To provide accessibility to boats, water transportation, and docking facilities for persons with disabilities, improvement to existing facilities is required. The report addresses safety and structural concerns of three concept designs of barrier free docking facilities to Beausoleil Island, Big Chute, and Port Severn. Also discussed are recommendations concerning improving accessibility to areas directly related to these sites. Design requirements and limitations were established on the basis of information gathered through site visits and in meetings with Parks Canada and advocacy groups such as the Canadian Paraplegic Association, the Canadian Hearing Society, and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is a fatal, communicable disease of pandemic proportions caused by the human immunodeficiency virus. At present, there are no vaccines and no significantly effective anti-viral therapies for this disease. In some Canadian cities, AIDS already robs young men of more years of potential life than cancer, heart disease or accidents. The number of women and their newborn children who are affected is growing rapidly. AIDS is distinct from other human diseases because complex social, legal, and political phenomena surround its medical and scientific aspects. This review summarizes some of the issues of a primarily legal nature, including discrimination, immigrants and visitors to Canada, federal prisons, criminal law and civil litigation.

Because of the increasing complexity of an air traffic controller's job and the increasing number of displays and sources, it is necessary to identify options for integrating tower equipment and systems by centralizing the sources of information and reducing equipment space requirements. A study was initiated to conduct human factors assessments and technical investigations and to present findings in a manner that may be used directly in the design of integrated Air Traffic Control (ATC) towers. Interim report 1 provided a work plan for the entire study and presented findings from an evaluation of planned Canadian Airspace System subsystems and a review of the functional requirements in ATC towers defined by the SEI functional requirements specification. Interim report 2 looked at the concept of an interim tower computer complex and provided human factor guidelines to be used in the assessment of candidate systems for equipment integration. This report amalgamates the two interim reports, the results of a review of the system engineering integration project (SEIP) national transition plan and site transition plan, and a recommended work breakdown structure for the next phase in the complete tower integration program.

The continuous plankton recorder (CPR) is one of the most important methods for assessing long-term biological changes in the ocean. This report examines CPR surveys in the Northwest Atlantic to determine seasonal cycles and long-term trends. The report provides maps of abundance by year, month, and species; defines sub-regions; and analyzes data for the presence of seasonal cycles and interannual variability. Particular attention is paid to phytoplankton colour index, Calanus stages I-IV, and Calanus stages V-VI. The seasonal cycle and long-term trends of each of the species that have been consistently processed are included.

Over the past few years, the Division of Vital Statistics has been working to produce vital statistics and health status indicators relevant to British Columbia's Status Indian population. In 1989, a file linkage pilot project with the B.C. Medical Services Plan was pursued to develop a database from which health statistics could be developed. As the results of this undertaking were encouraging, a more extensive analysis was conducted for the province as a whole. This report contains the results of this analysis, giving population estimates, birth-related statistical summaries, live birth fertility rate, infant mortality, death-related statistical summaries, age standardized mortality rates, potential years of life, major leading causes of death, and motor vehicle traffic accident deaths. Data used is from 1987-92.

In the post-war era, discussion of the prospects for a continued peace, or the eventuality of war, inevitably converge on the arms race. Controlling the arms race is argued by some to be a necessary element in the promotion of international stability. Others argue, however, that in fact arms control does little to contain the arms race, it simply codifies it. This paper provides a brief overview of the various forums in which arms control negotiations take place, some of the accomplishments achieved and, where appropriate, Canada's contribution to these.

All cultural policy is an expression of government willingness to adopt and implement a set of coherent principles, objectives and means to protect and foster a country's cultural expression. The arts are the foundation of such expression. This review focuses exclusively on Canadian cultural policy as it concerns the arts, that is, on the range of government actions that have a direct effect on creative and performing artists and on the organizations within which these artists work. It describes the leading concerns with respect to this country's cultural policy for the arts and the main responses of the federal government.

Les arts sont le fondement même d'une telle expression. Dans ce bulletin, nous nous penchons sur la partie de la politique culturelle canadienne qui porte sur les arts, soit l'ensemble des actions de l'État qui ont un effet direct sur les artistes créateurs et les interprètes ainsi que sur les organismes artistiques au sein desquels les artistes exercent leur art. The Canada Thistle Control Project evaluated thistle control in cereals, oilseeds, and on summerfallow to determine the most effective and economical control methods. In each year from 1990-93, plots were established on four summerfallow fields in the Melfort, Tisdale, Naicam, and Birch Hills area. Chemical treatments were applied at the rosette stage of Canada Thistle from 20 July to 10 August with and without fall tillage. In-crop experiments on wheat or canola were conducted on four fields each year from 1991-93 in the same area, chosen to provide relatively uniform distribution of thistle plants prior to treatment. Nineteen demonstration plots on fallow and 26 demonstration plots in-crop were established from 1990-93 in North East Saskatchewan. In 1990 and 1991, 19 large demonstration plots were established. In 1991-93, 26 small plots with six treatments and three repeats each were established on fallow and in-crop. Weed control on the small plots were visually rated from 0 for no control to 9 for complete control. This report provides the results of the trials and discusses their impact on agriculture in Saskatchewan. AG LS MS PR SC

Critical examination of the view of sceptics of the Federal and Provincial Governments' debt and deficit problems. Quotes by the sceptics that are considered representative of their views on key issues are presented and then rebutted. Key issues include the view that the borrowed money is owed to Canadians, that the debt ratio was higher during World War II, that the public debt has been incurred to finance capital investments, that private debt has been increasing even faster than public debt, that proponents of deficit reduction want to reduce the role of government in the economy, and that the Federal Government cannot go bankrupt. The sceptics' attribution of the growth of government debt and deficits to monetary policy, unemployment, and slow revenue growth is discussed, along with the solutions involving expansion of the money supply and reduction of interest rates, borrowing from Canadians, and abolishing the tax deduction for Registered Retirement Savings Plans. A short rebuttal is included. CA CI CO PA SS

Canada's nuclear fuel industry : an overview

By Alan Nixon. Ottawa : Library of Parliament, Research Branch, 1993. 17 p. : Bibl. (Background paper / Canada. Library of Parliament ; BP-360E) French ed. (L'Industrie du combustible...) on the same fiche. ISBN 0-660-15635-0 CCG-P no. YM32-2/360 MICROLOG 95-02008 (1 fiche)

On December 1942, the world's first nuclear reactor went critical, that is, the nuclear chain reaction became self-sustaining, and the nuclear age was born. The experiment, carried out on the campus of the University of Chicago and led by Enrico Fermi, was a crucial step toward the development of both nuclear weapons and, somewhat later, nuclear power. Now, half a century since Enrico Fermi conducted that first demonstration of a controlled nuclear chain reaction at the University of Chicago, is perhaps an appropriate time to review the situation of the nuclear power industry and to ask what the future might and should hold. This background paper, one of a series examining various aspects of nuclear power both in the Canadian and the broader global contexts, reviews the Canadian nuclear fuels industry. CA CI CO DE EN SC

Cassiar Timber Supply Area socio-economic analysis

Submitted by Robinson Consulting & Associates Ltd. and Carla Blackner. Victoria : Ministry of Forests, Economics & Trade Branch, 1994. vii, 56 p. : Maps, Bibl.
MICROLOG 95-02163 (1 fiche)

The British Columbia Government is conducting a review of the province's 36 timber supply areas (TSAs). As part of the assessment of timber supply availability, a socio-economic analysis is required of the effects of changing harvest levels. This report presents the analysis for the Cassiar TSA, using a general accounts framework that identifies the potential implications of alternate harvest levels. The report describes the study area; the communities and demographic trends; and First Nations groups resident in the region; the environmental setting; the region's economy; the timber harvesting land base, current annual allowable cut (AAC) level, and the harvest forecasts against which the current situation is compared; and the economic, social, and environmental implications of the harvest forecasts.

La Commission canadienne du lait joue un rôle important dans la mise en œuvre de la politique laitière du gouvernement fédéral et favorise le développement de l'industrie laitière au Canada. Travaillant en collaboration avec les producteurs, les transformateurs, les organismes provinciaux de mise en marché du lait et les exportateurs, la Commission conseille le ministre de l'Agriculture sur les questions qui touchent l'industrie laitière et élabore des politiques et des programmes qui répondent aux besoins de l'industrie tout en assurant les consommateurs canadiens des approvisionnements suffisants de produits laitiers de qualité. Ce document présente le rapport annuel de la Commission touchant la gestion des approvisionnements de lait, le contrôle des importations, le prix cible pour le lait de transformation, les paiements directs de soutien, le prix de soutien pour le beurre et la poudre de lait écrémé, et la mise en marché intérieure et internationale. Les états financiers vérifiés terminent le document.

Commissioning the air barrier within the building envelope can help control the consequences of damage associated with air leakage. This report provides an approach to air leakage that extends the air barrier commissioning process to the project brief, validation of the design, and progressive certification during and possibly following construction. The report describes air barrier specifications for the building envelope; the design process for the air barrier along with suggested revisions; air barrier details and specifications; air barrier certification during construction and final commissioning; post commissioning operation, monitoring, and repair; and costs. Appendices describe certified air barrier details and the air permeability of construction materials.

Study to obtain a detailed comparison of engine performance and exhaust emissions from a spark-ignition engine fuelled by both natural gas and gasoline. The test facility consists of a Ricardo Hydra four-stroke single-cylinder spark-ignition research engine, 450 cc swept volume, designed specifically for research. Results were obtained over a wide range of engine speeds, loads, and air-fuel ratios under steady-state operating conditions. The data were acquired with the use of the standard Ricardo "bathtub" combustion chamber and flat piston for both fuels at the compression ratio of 8.25:1. The engine speeds selected for testing were 1000, 2000, and 3000 rpm, and the relative air-fuel ratios ranged from 1.00 at 0.10 increment to the lean limit of combustion. Each fuel was tested at wide-open throttle and part-load (65% full-load and 35% full load) conditions, and at minimum spark advance for best torque timing.

La deuxième question touche les médias. What role is played by the independent conflicts regulatory bodies? This paper explores these and other related issues by focusing on certain topics relevant to the regulation of conflict of interest.

L'expression conflit d'intérêts désigne un problème parfois difficile à cerner. Pourquoi le Parlement a-t-il été incapable d'adopter une loi sur les conflits d'intérêts, bien que quatre projets de loi sur le sujet aient été présentés depuis 1988? Quels principes sont en jeu réduisant les conflits? Comment fait-on le pont entre ces principes et les mécanismes d'application habituellement prévus dans les lois ou dont on propose le plus souvent l'adoption? Quel rôle les organismes indépendants de réglementation en matière de conflits d'intérêts jouent-ils? Dans ce document, nous traitons de ces questions et de sujets connexes en insistant sur certains sujets relatifs à la réglementation régissant les conflits d'intérêts.

The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms came into force on April 17, 1982. The purpose of this analysis is to determine what effect sections 11, 12 and 13 of the Charter have had on existing criminal law since then. As there are now a great number of decided cases dealing with these sections, this paper concentrates on significant decisions of the provincial courts of appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada.

La criminalité en général et, plus particulièrement, la criminalité chez les jeunes et le système judiciaire pour les jeunes, suscitent de plus en plus de colère, de crainte et de frustration chez les Canadiens. Ce document examine d'abord l'ancienne Loi sur les jeunes délinquants et celle qui l'a remplacée, la Loi sur les jeunes contrevenants. On expose ensuite la situation de la criminalité chez les jeunes au Canada, telle qu'en font foi les statistiques officielles, puis on aborde la question de la crainte inspirée par la criminalité. On passe ensuite en revue les modifications apportées à la Loi sur les jeunes contrevenants en 1984 et en 1992 ainsi que les autres propositions de réforme de la Loi qu'ont formulées les partis politiques fédéraux au cours de la récente campagne électorale. Enfin, on propose deux façons différentes d'aborder le problème de la criminalité ainsi que sa prévention et sa répression.

Quand la crise éclate, les deux premières heures sont déterminantes car c'est durant ce court laps de temps que le public se forme une opinion de votre organisme (conseil ou commission scolaire, syndicat, collège, université, ministère, etc.) qu'il conservera longtemps et bien après la résolution de l'événement. Il est essentiel pour un établissement scolaire de comprendre que toute crise présente des aspects bénéfiques, si on sait la gérer avec intelligence, efficacité et honnêteté. Et cela, c'est le propos de cet ouvrage.

The Latin American Program was initiated in 1980 to promote the conservation of migratory birds and their habitats in Mexico, Central and South America, and the Caribbean. The program focuses on scientifically based projects such as collaborative research and surveys, training, and technical workshops. This report describes the program rationale and objectives and gives a summary of projects completed or ongoing from 1980-93. Where projects continue over more than one year, a summary of the overall project is followed by accomplishments listed on an annual basis. Projects are listed under the categories of shorebirds, waterbirds and wetlands, raptors, and coordination, training, and workshops. Each project summary includes information on fiscal year, funding amount, Canadian team, locations and host country collaborators, and reports and publications. Financial data on expenditures by year are included.

DREO has built an antenna anechoic facility for microwave and millimetre-wave measurement that includes a spherical near-field antenna measurement system that allows far-field measurement of small antennas and near-field measurement of larger antennas (up to one meter) within the chamber. This report describes the facility, including the equipment, instrumentation, and the DREO Antenna Measurement Acquisition (DAMAS) software that was developed. DAMAS was developed to control the measurement and acquisition process in real time, and to present the data to the operator, thus streamlining the process so that an antenna could be accurately characterized in the minimum amount of time.

Dans ce document, nous nous attachons à ce dernier problème et analysons le Programme canadien de gestion des déchets de combustible nucléaire, dans le cadre duquel des chercheurs et des ingénieurs travaillent depuis plus de 15 ans à l'élaboration d'un plan d'élimination permanente, qui ne sera toutefois pas terminé avant quelque temps encore. Nous examinons aussi le processus d'évaluation qu'utilise le Programme, les coûts de ce dernier, ainsi que les critiques formulées à son égard par les groupes environnementaux.

The new Canadian Patrol Frigates (CPF) integrate an extensive suite of electronic systems that considerably extend the communications, navigation, ship's defence, and weapon capabilities. This greater dependence on electronics may jeopardize the ship safety and mission if those systems were found to be vulnerable to the electromagnetic envi-

This report discusses various aspects of electromagnetic compatibility in general and EMP in particular on board modern ships; presents the various types of EMP simulators and describes EMIS-2; and describes data acquisition instrumentation required for EMP testing of large objects such as a ship. Guidelines for preparing a proper test plan and difficulties that may be encountered during the test are discussed in detail.

To avoid having to bring technicians from across Canada for centralized training at Cornwall, Ontario, a project was initiated to investigate the potential of computer-aided learning (CAL). The project included the development of an ergonomically designed workstation on which to install the computer, monitor, and other equipment necessary for an electronics technician to engage in training with a minimum of distraction. A SUN Sparc mini-computer and associated hardware were supplied, along with two software training packages developed independently of the project. After familiarization, each package was subjected to a formal first stage evaluation, in which ergonomics and training experts observed and monitored technicians as they operated the package. The results of the evaluation were used to develop new training software for use in final evaluation trials.

This listing of British Columbia secondary manufacturing companies was developed by gathering company names from industry associations, telephone directories, and private and public sector company inventories. Companies were contacted either through a mail-out questionnaire or a phone interview. The directory provides an alphabetical company listing, identifying the company by name, address, and business type. The business type classification reflects the composition of products being manufactured within a product listing for Secondary Manufactured Wood Products. The product listing is in a Yellow-Pages format with companies listed under both major and sub-major specific products. Companies are identified by company name and the related type of business classification is again provided. Company profiles are arranged by business type and provide information on number of employees, major equipment, products manufactured, custom services, species used and sales by region, and future market interests. The company is also classified by sales proportion into a business type from within the secondary manufactured wood product listing.

De 1985 à 1987, et en 1991 et 1992, sept missions d'échantillonnage ont été menées dans le nord du golfe du Saint-Laurent entre la fin avril et le début de juillet. L'ensemble des missions a permis d'obtenir de l'information sur la composition en espèces et sur la distribution des larves d'invertébrés décapodes et des oeufs et larves de poissons. Un total de 28 espèces réparties en 13 familles ont été recensées pour l'ensemble des missions. L'objectif de ce document est de présenter sous forme rapidement utilisable l'information sur la composition de la communauté et sur la distribution des larves des principales espèces de poissons et d'invertébrés décapodes dans le nord du golfe du Saint-Laurent.

The Drama process : language development through movement

By Hania Krajewski. St. Catharines, ON : Brock University, Faculty of Education, 1992. vii, 186 p. : ill., Bibl. ONTERIS ON07209
MICROLOG 95-01948 (3 fiche)

This project entailed the design of a curriculum unit for primary classroom teachers in the elementary school. A series of activities has been planned for language development based on the elements of creative movement. The movement activities were set within the drama context of role playing. Links movement education with language development in primary education. Creative movement, involving gross and/or fine motor skills is connected with story building, role playing and the use of the imagination. Follows the learning theories of Jean Piaget, child psychologist, and Emile Jaques-Dalcroze, early 20th century music educator. Focuses on teacher's ability to work with unit independently, but has not yet been tested with children. A writing team, made of up teachers with no background in movement education, was set up to produce a movement-language curriculum kit.

Examines the impact of drama on the language arts and the importance of language and thought in the development of the drama curriculum. Draws upon drama teaching experience with young children. Comprises 2 sections. The 1st section discusses issues such as: the stimulation of language and cognitive development through role playing in drama; new modes of speaking through expressive, interactive and reflective language; the language processes involved in dramatic play, games and exercises, improvised drama, and presenting and performing; dramatic play vs. drama; and the teacher role in drama. The 2d section examines how drama activities help students bring meaning to reading and build their own narratives, read aloud, write, and experience whole language. Concludes with summary of the reciprocal relationship between drama and language. Includes bibliography.

In discussing the current state of ET in Canada, this paper reviews recent survey results pertaining to the incidence of ET, the scant evidence of sub-optimal levels of skill acquisition activities in the workplace, possible reasons for sub-optimal ET and federal initiatives to stimulate this type of training.

This manual provides the fundamentals of a standard approach for fisheries assessments of Group A and B highway projects. It recognizes the coincident requirements of fisheries assessments for the highway environmental assessment planning and design process and the ultimate potential requirement for approvals under the Fisheries Act. The manual covers the effects of highway construction and operation; legislative requirements; fisheries protocol; development and evaluation of route alternatives and selection of a preferred alternative; and preliminary and detailed design. A glossary is included. Appendices provide information on fish habitat inventory methods, fish population sampling, fish swimming speeds, and fish species of Ontario.

Les buts poursuivis consistaient à développer des méthodes et techniques de travail rentables pour la coupe de tremble et pour le pin gris ayant déjà subi une première éclaircie. Les longueurs du bois récolté correspondaient aux exigences des utilisateurs, 2,5 3,75 et 5,0 m. C'est une façon neuve d'arbre HYPRO 450 montée sur un tracteur qui a été utilisée comme équipement sylvicole. Cette recherche fournit certaines indications et informations quant aux possibilités que peut offrir ce type d'équipement en forêt privée.

The desire to be spared from prolonged suffering, the increased incidence of incurable diseases such as AIDS and Alzheimer's disease, and a better understanding of how medical technology can prolong life and affect the dying process, among other things, have fuelled the desire to achieve greater control over decisions relating to life and death. These factors have also fostered a renewed interest in euthanasia and cessation of medical treatment. This paper examines the social and legal issues associated with these subjects, especially in the context of the law of Canada, the United States and the Netherlands.

To evaluate the likelihood for fracture development and propagation in the rock mass surrounding a disposal vault, it is necessary to know the in situ stress conditions for the site, the strength of the rock mass, modes for joint and fault development and propagation, and anticipated changes in the loading conditions for the disposal vault. This paper takes the geotechnical information collected over the past 15 years from the Underground Research Laboratory at Pinawa, Manitoba and applies the information to evaluate the potential for fracture growth in the rock mass around a nuclear fuel waste disposal vault.

As the forest industry is forced to harvest in increasingly remote areas, the demands on the heavy trucks used to transport the timber become greater. The Forest Engineering Research Institute of Canada (FERIC) has been researching methods for making these trucks safer and more productive. It has identified antilock braking systems (ABS) and automatic slip regulation (ASR) as technologies that could be used together to make trucks safer and more efficient. This project evaluated the performance, reliability, durability, and maintainability of ABS/ASR technology on a Kenworth C-500 tractor equipped with a Bosch 6-channel ABS/ASR system, pulling a set of TAC-configured B-train trailers equipped with Bosch ABS. The report also compares the results with those from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) ABS project and the Transportation Development Centre/Ontario ABS project.

It handles telephone calls, provides information to callers, creates and manages computer speech, creates and manages menus, interrogates a computerized scheduling database, and provides statistical reports. The BusLine system was evaluated for its client service and acceptability with customer focus groups and client surveys; for its telephone system performance before and after loads on telephone operators and call-handling capabilities; and to provide a benefit-cost analysis.

According to recently established standards for flight data recorders and cockpit voice recorders, underwater location beacons (ULBs) are to remain attached to the memory modules of the recorders following an impact of 3400 g. The currently available ULBs and brackets were designed to meet the previous, lower impact standards. This study was conducted to determine whether the ULBs have remained attached to the memory modules following recent aircraft accidents; if ULBs would remain attached to the memory modules during laboratory impact testing to the new standards; and the operability of the ULBs and the memory modules following the impact tests. Laboratory tests were conducted to assess the 3400 g impact on flight records and ULBs and a survey of accident investigation organizations was conducted.

This paper is concerned with two recent proposals for restructuring federal-provincial economic roles, each of which is driven by purely economic considerations. Neither proposal would make major changes to the current distribution of spending powers. One would involve simply a re-alignment of taxing powers, while the other would be based upon a large-scale federal loan to the provinces coupled with constraints on transfer reductions and provincial deficit financing. Both of these proposals can be seen as responses to an impending vertical imbalance in the resources available to these two levels of government. CA CI CO DE PA SS

Federal-provincial relations impact upon most of the major activities of government in Canada, and are in a state of virtually continuous evolution. Important sources of change are: the election of new governments with new political priorities and conceptions of the federal-provincial process; the social and political environment, which continuously generates new problems and issues; and accumulated experience with ever more complex intergovernmental relationships, which propels both political and institutional adjustment. This paper reviews major developments on the federal-provincial scene, and relates them to ongoing issues and trends. On this basis, it attempts to anticipate probable directions in federal-provincial relations and in evolving institutions. CA CI DE PA SS

The need for tree species selection on a site specific basis to regenerate the province's forests is now recognized. However, little research has been done to assess the suitability of species, stock types, and planting seasons in coastal high-elevation ecosystems. To address these issues, planting trials were established at sites within the Mountain Hemlock and montane Coastal Western Hemlock biogeoclimatic zones. Six test areas were chosen within each zone. Amabilis fir, noble fir, yellow cedar, and mountain hemlock were selected for planting in the Mountain Hemlock zone, and Amabilis fir, noble fir, western white pine, western redcedar, and western hemlock were planted in the Coastal Western Hemlock zone. Plug, plug transplant, and bareroot stock types were used for the eight species across both zones. Seedlings were planted in the fall and spring in 1978/79 and 1979/80. Survival, growth, and tree form 13 years after planting were used as indicators of the reliability and productivity of the planting treatment combinations.

The evaluation addressed whether the problems and recommendations referred to in the evaluation of the Subsidiary Agreement on Fisheries Development, the previous agreement, were taken into account for the current agreement; if Cooperation Agreement programs were properly adapted to industry needs, if there was good sector coverage, and if the funds were properly managed; and gave special attention given to the aquaculture sector because of its dominant position in fish harvesting. The evaluation reviewed Agreement program and project files and annual reports; prepared 20 case studies covering all four Agreement sectors and a wide variety of program activities; interviewed government officials involved at all levels of the Agreement; and created a database containing information on all of the projects and activities funded under the Agreement's sectors and programs. This paper explores the motives underlying company strategies for accessing foreign markets; identifies the major factors influencing the choice of exports, licensing agreements, joint ventures, and ownership of production affiliates; and discusses both the influence of government policies on such strategies and the implications of these findings for policy developments. Personal interviews were conducted in fall 1993 with senior management of multinational food manufacturing companies in Canada and the United States. In some cases, the persons interviewed were located in the Canadian subsidiary. Companies were selected based on prior knowledge of the international operations. Supplementary information from annual reports and secondary sources were used as necessary to obtain a comprehensive view.

When a crisis strikes, the first 120 minutes can determine the public's perceptions of the school system, employee group, community college, university or ministry, and the image the organization will have long after the situation is under control. This document defines a crisis and the need for crisis management; the result of a crisis that is not managed; the key elements of good crisis management as exemplified by Johnson & Johnson, Wisconsin Electric Power Co., and Molson Breweries; the need for communication planning and establishment of credibility before the crisis strikes; elements of a communication plan; measures to take during an actual crisis, using the example of a teachers' strike; and principles of crisis management.

Examination of the first feeding and growth of American eel elvers in relation to ambient temperature. About 200 elvers were netted in each of 1989, 1990, and 1991 in the tidal portion of the Lepreau River, New Brunswick in early June. The elvers were transported to the laboratory and randomly distributed in lots of 20 to each of 3-5 growth changers. In 1989, two test temperatures yielded sufficient numbers of elvers to allow statistical analysis. Four test temperatures were investigated in each subsequent year. Elvers were weighed and measured each year prior to use in experiments.

Economic policy is increasingly being conducted by provincial governments. While monetary policy is exclusively in the federal domain, fiscal policy is a shared responsibility. This paper examines some of the prominent trends in provincial and federal fiscal policy since 1975 in order to provide a background against which total fiscal policy and future federal budgets can be evaluated.

Greenland halibut are caught in Cumberland Sound only during the winter, with exploratory fisheries conducted during the summer being unsuccessful. It is therefore not feasible to assess the stock directly using standard methods. This study examines catch records and data obtained from annual sampling of the Cumberland Sound catch to determine if any changes have occurred over the first six years of fishing. It also reports results of an experimental fishery carried out to determine if the observed population structure is dependent on gear selectivity. Sampling was carried out at fishing sites on the ice of Cumberland Sound in March 1987, 1988, and 1989, February and April 1990, and March 1991 and 1992. Several fishing camps were visited during each sampling period. When a longline was hauled, all fish caught were sampled. Fish were sampled for fork length, round weight, dressed head-off weight, and stomach contents. Otoliths were removed and stored and the left sacculus otolith was prepared and read. All fishermen were issued forms on which to record their catch and effort. Catch per unit effort data were collected in all years but 1988.

Ce colloque d'une durée de deux jours a été organisé dans le cadre du 61e Congrès de l'Acfas (Association-canadienne française pour l'avancement des sciences) qui s'est tenu à Rimouski en mai 1993. Les objectifs étaient de faire le point sur l'état des connaissances scientifiques sur le fjord du Saguenay et d'identifier les principaux axes de recherche qui devraient être poursuivis pour approfondir notre connaissance de cet environnement. En plus des objectifs scientifiques, ce colloque devait aussi permettre de discuter et de décrire le projet de développement du parc marin. Les présentations étaient regroupées sous les quatre thèmes suivants : géologie et circulation du fjord du Saguenay; océanographie biologique du fjord du Saguenay; toxicologie du fjord du Saguenay; et, le parc marin du Saguenay/St-Laurent. Ce manuscrit présente, sous forme de résumés ou articles, le contenu de la plupart des présentations effectuées à ce colloque. Les conclusions et recommandations sont également présentées dans le rapport.

Étant donné que la capacité productive de la population active d'un pays dépend en partie des investissements consentis dans le capital humain, il n'est pas surprenant de constater que cette question figure au premier plan des discussions sur la compétitivité et la prospérité du Canada. À cet égard, les investissements dans le capital humain (qu'on appellera dans ce document la formation coordonnée par l'entreprise ou FCE) que font les diverses entreprises et leurs employés, et qui font l'objet de ce document, revêtent un intérêt particulier. Dans ce document, nous examinons, pour analyser l'état actuel de la FCE au Canada, les résultats d'enquêtes récentes sur la fréquence de la formation coordonnée par l'entreprise, les preuves peu abondantes qui existent quant au niveau sous-optimal des activités de formation dans le milieu de travail, les raisons possibles du caractère sous-optimal de la CF et les initiatives que pourrait prendre le gouvernement fédéral afin de stimuler ce type de formation.

Indications are that the interdisciplinary field of socio-legal research and studies will continue to grow and place societal and educational demands on Canadian universities. At the same time, several reports and inquiries have called for more attention to centres of excellence, which create a context for such interdisciplinary work, and a revision of research granting policies to this end. This paper addresses the question through a discussion of the place of Prairie Justice Research (PJR) in the field. It discusses the concept of multidisciplinary research and the founding of centres of focused research; the debate over research centres in Canada and the influence of events in the United States and Western Europe; the establishment of networks rather than centres of excellence; and the future of socio-legal research at the University of Regina.

While PAC had handled various aspects of community life for adults with a mental handicap, its original purpose to advise on de-institutionalization is nearing completion. This raises the questions of its continuation, its purposes and responsibilities if it does continue, membership and structure of the committee, and relationships of the committee with other groups with associated concerns. Telephone interviews were conducted with 47 individuals as well as members of PAC and the Transition Steering Committee to gain their views on these questions. Since global trade has monopolized discussion on these policies all over the world for the past few months, it is not surprising to note that it has also sparked controversy on the Canadian agricultural scene. This document is intended to clarify the current situation. It is based strictly on the probable economic impacts of the decisions made. From this viewpoint, GATT Article XI is presented as the cornerstone of the domestic agricultural and trade policies of producing countries.

In 1991, a two-member panel of the immigration and refugee board handed down a decision in a refugee case that provoked a storm of controversy lasting for over a year. Although that particular case was satisfactorily settled in January 1993 (when the woman was given permission to stay in Canada), the general issues it raised continue to be debated. This paper outlines and discusses that case and then summarizes developments in those aspects of Canadian refugee law that deal with gender-related claims.

Ce document comporte deux parties principales. La première partie porte essentiellement sur le travail des commissaires de la Commission royale sur le transport des voyageurs au Canada, depuis leur nomination jusqu'à la présentation de leur rapport final. On met surtout l'accent sur les défis particuliers que doivent relever de nombreuses commissions royales orientées vers les politiques, au moment de déterminer le travail qui doit être accompli et la meilleure façon de procéder. La seconde partie met en relief plusieurs facteurs d'ordre opérationnel touchant à l'établissement et à la gestion d'un groupe apte à livrer ce dont les commissaires ont besoin, soit un produit valable en un court laps de temps.

La gestion des déchets radioactifs est l'un des problèmes environnementaux les plus sérieux auxquels doivent faire face les Canadiens. Depuis les premières utilisations industrielles des matières radioactives dans les années 30, en passant par la mise au point des réacteurs nucléaires et jusqu'aux applications médicales et expérimentales des radio-isotopes de nos jours, il y a eu accumulation constante de déchets radioactifs. Bien que les difficultés que soulève la gestion des déchets radioactifs soient considérables, il existe des solutions convenables. Dans ce document, nous examinons la question des déchets radioactifs de faible activité, y compris leur production, les quantités entreposées, le taux d'accumulation des déchets et les stratégies de gestion possibles.

This paper focuses on the administration costs of the GST. First, it establishes what these costs comprise and, since the GST was introduced relatively recently, examines startup costs. Second, it looks at ways measuring the effectiveness of administration of a tax, and compares the administration of the GST with that of the former MST and of value added taxes in other countries. Lastly, the document examines the factors that determine the administration costs of a tax, how they affect the GST, and how they could be reduced.

It is important to understand the composition of expenditures in order to see the impacts reductions would have. In a second section, we look at the process of consideration of expenditures by Parliament. We ask who participates in this process, and how it guarantees that public funds are properly spent. Finally, we deal with efforts to reduce expenditures both in Canada and in other countries.

Review of the third party billing process relating to uninsured services performed by salaried physicians at the Grenfell Regional Health Services Board. The review focused on the two acute care hospital facilities operated by the Board and was conducted to determine whether appropriate authority existed for the Board to retain third party billings of physicians on staff; documentation in place in support of the third party billing process; and to ensure that adequate controls exist relating to the invoicing and collection of third party billings. This report gives background information on the review; and findings and recommendations on Board authority relating to third party billings, by-laws, personnel files, accounting controls, and identification

A number of experts believe that the GST has fostered the underground economy and imposes too great an administrative burden on government and business. The new government has promised to replace the GST with a tax that would generate the same revenue, would be fairer to consumers and small businesses, would not be a headache for small businesses, and would encourage federal and provincial governments to cooperate and harmonize their tax policies. In this paper, after examining the GST's impact on the underground economy and on the administrative burden, we discuss possible alternatives.

This debate places in the most acute conflict possible generally accepted Canadian multicultural and egalitarian social values and the libertarian value of freedom of expression.

MICROLOG 95-02536 (2 fiche)

This report is an implementation evaluation of the Native Community Council project undertaken during a six-week period during February and March 1993, almost two years after the project was initiated. The purpose of this evaluation was to provide a comprehensive description and assessment of the planning, design and implementation of the Native Community Council project, and its operation to the present. Specific objectives of the evaluation were: to provide a description of the community consultation and needs assessment conducted by Aboriginal legal services of Toronto; to assess the efficiency of project implementation; to assess the organization of the project and the efficiency of service delivery; and, to provide recommendations for the future development of the Community Council project specifically, and for urban-based Native justice projects in general.

MICROLOG 95-02363 (1 fiche)

Investigation of some possible improvements to Calgary's entranceways to ensure that visitors arriving by road or by air form a favourable first impression of the city. The study examines existing development along the TransCanada Highway east and west and Barlow Trail. It proposes guidelines for consideration by the Approving Authority when reviewing development proposals adjacent to these entranceways and suggests long-term public improvements to enhance the streetscapes and high-light landforms and scenic opportunities, including ways of implementing them. For each entranceway, design themes, zoning changes, architectural guidelines, and public improvements are suggested.

Education, though an acknowledged key to productivity growth, is costly. As governments look for ways to cut their deficits, attempts are being made to shift the costs away from governments to the students, or the students' parents. This paper discusses first the earliest proposal for income-contingent student loans and then attempts in the U.S., Australia and New Zealand to implement the scheme. Finally, the document highlights lessons for Canada and predicts how the system might work here.

C'est le 2 décembre 1942 que le premier réacteur nucléaire a franchi l'étape critique, celle de la réaction nucléaire auto-entretenue; le monde venait d'entrer dans l'ère nucléaire. L'expérience, menée sur le campus de l'Université de Chicago et dirigée par Enrico Fermi, a constitué une étape cruciale vers la mise au point des armes nucléaires et, un peu plus tard, de l'énergie électronucléaire. Aujourd'hui, un demi-siècle après avoir fait la première démonstration d'une réaction nucléaire en chaîne contrôlée à l'université de Chicago, le moment est peut-être venu de faire un examen de la situation de l'industrie de l'énergie nucléaire et de se demander quel pourrait être l'avenir de ce secteur. Dans cette étude générale, qui s'inscrit dans une série consacrée à un examen de divers aspects de l'énergie nucléaire, tant au Canada que dans le contexte mondial, nous examinons l'industrie des combustibles nucléaires au Canada.

In Alberta, structural foundations must bear on undisturbed soil below the frost line, resulting in full-basement residential construction. Research in Scandinavian countries has resulted in widespread use of insulated shallow footings (ISF) whose bearing planes are within the zone of frost penetration. This project determined the suitability and market viability of ISFs in Alberta as an alternative to conventional full-basement construction for wood-frame houses. Project work included a literature search; interviews with builders, developers, realtors, lenders, and researchers to establish the industry's reaction to replacing basements with shallow foundations; and the design of three houses on insulated shallow footings and the comparison of them to a similar house on a conventional basement foundation.

Labour, the most widely used and valued input in Canadian production, is exchanged in a market best described as being in a constant state of flux. Recent estimates suggest that more than four million people secure employment each year, while a similar number become unemployed or leave the labour market. Conditions in this market throughout the last decade and the beginning of the 1990s were influenced by a number of factors, the chief of which include two major recessions, disproportionate growth in regional employment and an increase in the incidence of long-term unemployment. This paper looks at these and other developments in the labour market that have occurred since the beginning of the last decade.

Depuis les travaux de la Commission royale d'enquête sur le bilinguisme et le biculturalisme, la politique fédérale en matière de langues officielles est associée à la préservation de l'unité du pays. L'enchaînement des droits linguistiques dans la Constitution en 1982 a ouvert une nouvelle page de l'évolution dans ce domaine au Canada. Ce bulletin d'actualité porte sur les trois composantes essentielles de la politique fédérale en matière de langues officielles, soit les droits linguistiques protégés par la Constitution, la Loi sur les langues officielles de 1988 et l'appui au développement des minorités de langue officielle.

The United States-developed real time quality control (RTQC) algorithm works poorly in northern Canadian radar sites because of its inability to calculate properly the radar position bias when there is a low aircraft traffic in areas of overlapping radar coverage. This problem results in track ambiguity and a display of ghost tracks. This report proposes a modification of the RTQC algorithm using least-square techniques. The proposed least-square RTQC (LS-RTQC) algorithm was tested with real recorded data from the North Warning System. CA EX ND PS SC

This report establishes the extent to which legal aid programs meet the needs of the poor and examines ways in which they might be improved. The report begins with an examination of the reasons why low-income people need subsidized legal assistance and the nature of the services they require. It then analyzes the way in legal aid programs work in Canada today and assesses the degree to which the services they offer are capable of dealing with the legal problems of the disadvantaged. Suggestions are offered for improving legal aid, including using the most cost-effective delivery systems, the use of non-traditional systems, better management, a federal/provincial cost-sharing agreement, abolishing imprisonment for fines, and preventing crime. The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms came into force on April 17, 1982. The legal rights guaranteed by the Charter are contained in sections 7 to 14. These sections deal with such matters as the right to life, liberty and security; the right to be secure against unreasonable search and seizure; the rights of an accused upon arrest; the right of an accused to certain proceedings in criminal and penal matters; and the right not to be subject to cruel and unusual punishment. This document looks at these very issues. It focuses on the interpretation of an entrenched charter and fundamental justice. CA CI DE JU SS

Links between education and employment : how four studies reflect the transition from school to work

Examines data from 4 studies to determine how they reflect the transition from education to employment so that applications can be made to student needs. An analysis of the reviews of pertinent literature presented in study 1, and the results of a questionnaire, provide background information for understanding the students' decision-making environment. Through the comments of 20 university students in study 2, insight into the transition process is offered, establishing that this process extends to all school leavers. The 3d study's data, based on a co-op sample, involves all the agencies that socialize students: home, school, and work. The final presentation of emergent transition patterns of a group of Ontario students isolates some of the problems associated with the transition process. ED LA MU ON OR SS

This discussion paper, the second part of the Commission's project on adult guardianship, looks at the law as it relates to advance health care directives (commonly known as "living wills") in Nova Scotia. The paper deals only with personal and health care decision-making and not with decisions that involve property or financial matters. It examines the province's Medical Consent Act and seeks to determine whether the current form of advance health care directive should be expanded to include other models, such as a "living will" model. The paper describes the current law and suggests a number of possible reforms, including appropriate type, when it would come into effect, who could make it, its revocation, the question of proxy, and legal formalities.

The management of radioactive waste is one of the most serious environmental problems facing Canadians. From the early industrial uses of radioactive material in the 1930s to the development of nuclear power reactors and the medical and experimental use of radio-isotopes today, there has been a steady accumulation of waste products. Although the difficulties involved in radioactive waste management are considerable, responsible solutions are possible. This paper discusses low-level radioactive waste, including its production, the amounts in storage, the rate of waste accumulation and possible strategies for its management.

This paper identifies the important considerations for setting up and running royal commissions, task forces, special committees, project teams, or secretariats and provides a guide for appointees and managers responsible for planning and conducting the work necessary to fulfill their mandates. Part I focuses on the work of the Royal Commission on National Passenger Transportation (RCNPT) Commissioners from appointment of Commissioners to delivery of the final report, emphasizing the challenges faced in determining the work to be done and the best way to proceed. Part II highlights a number of operational considerations pertinent to setting up and running a staff organization capable of delivering a significant product in a short time. The Appendix contains a compendium of key lessons learned. A chronology of the work of the RCNPT is also given.

Design requirements for an EICT system logging electronics are specified also. The study was conducted to establish the potential of using the EICT system for measuring moisture content in a reference buffer material by measuring the effect of variations of moisture content and density on resistivity as determined in laboratory tests and by taking classical, geophysical electrical measurements in situ. The measurements were done using four-electrode arrays in a Wenner spread configuration, with direct and alternating current stimulation.

Un aperçu régional du caractère général et des processus fournit une description des milieux côtiers et une introduction à la documentation que l'on peut consulter pour obtenir plus d'information sur un site ou un sujet donné. On y traite du devenir probable et de la persistance des hydrocarbures qui atteignent le littoral afin de fournir un cadre nécessaire à l'élaboration de stratégies d'intervention et au choix de mesures appropriées de nettoyage ou de traitement du littoral. Les expériences récentes lors des déversements de l'Exxon Valdez et du Nestucca et les études connexes du projet de déversement de pétrole à l'île de Baffin et du déversement de l'Arrow en 1970, en particulier, ont permis d'enrichir nos connaissances sur toute la gamme des conditions possibles de mazoutage du littoral à la suite de déversements au Canada. When Manitoba health began downsizing the hospital sector, the Manitoba centre for health policy and evaluation agreed to monitor and report annually on the effects of these changes. Before beginning these efforts to monitor the effects of downsizing the acute sector, interviews were held with physicians, nurses and others to determine what individuals' major concerns were about negative impacts on the health care system, patients and quality of care. In developing this report we have attempted to monitor those things about which individuals expressed most concern. The results of the analyses using 1990 through 1992 data from the administrative data files of Manitoba Health are the basis of this report. This study addresses three major questions: do these actions reduce access to hospital care; do they reduce the quality of care provided in these institutions; and, do they negatively affect the health status of the city's population?

In February 1993, the British Columbia Government released its document on new directions for health services in the province in which the establishment of a decentralized health system was called for. A mortality mapping research project was begun to investigate spatial variation in mortality at the local health area level. The project provided estimated community-level mortality rates based on sophisticated statistical modelling procedures, but contained instances of instability of age standardized mortality rates (ASMRs) and large variations in standardized mortality ratios (SMRs) for some local health areas (LHAs), mainly due to too few observed events associated with either rarity or small populations. This report addresses the concerns of the interpretation of small area mortality and provides alternative solutions. It gives an overview of an implementation of a statistical procedure based on the theory introduced by Mantel (1989), some illustrative results, and discussions for further research.

Nouvelles méthodes de résolution de problèmes de conception de réseaux et leur implantation en environnement parallèle

Par Bernard Gendron. Montréal : Université de Montréal, Centre de recherche sur les transports, 1994. xv, 243 p. : ill. Bibl. (Publication / Université de Montréal. Centre de recherche sur les transports ; no 94-50) MICROLOG 95-02274 (3 fiche)

Cette thèse s'oriente autour de deux grands axes de recherche : d'une part, la modélisation et la résolution de problèmes de conception de réseaux; d'autre part, l'implantation de ces méthodes de résolution en environnements parallèles. Le premier axe de recherche trouve sa motivation dans de nombreux problèmes appliqués en logistique des transports et en télécommunications. Le deuxième axe de recherche répond à une volonté grandissante de résoudre efficacement les modèles combinatoires de grande taille résultant des problèmes de conception de réseaux. Ci-après, nous résumons les contributions principales de cette thèse et nous dégageons des avenues de recherche ouvertes suite à ce travail.

For many years, the Canadian nuclear industry has prided itself on its ability to provide safe, reliable and low-cost electricity to consumers. While nuclear power has indeed proved to be a relatively safe generator of electricity, its performance with respect to reliability and cost has declined noticeably in recent years. This paper documents the deteriorating cost performance of the industry, in comparison with that of its traditional competitor in power generation. It also breaks down the total costs into its component parts, assessing the key factors underlying the trends that are worsening the competitive position of the industry: a rise in initial capital costs, unanticipated technical difficulties resulting in additional capital costs, and the increasing operating expenses associated with poorer-than-expected reactor performance.

Since the time of the royal commission of Inquiry on bilingualism and biculturalism, federal official languages policy has been linked to the preservation of Canadian unity. The enshrinement of language rights in the Constitution in 1982 opened a new chapter in the evolution of these rights in Canada. In this document, we examine the three basic components of federal official languages policy: language rights protected under the constitution, the Official Languages Act, 1988, and support for the development of the official language minorities.

The study describes their distribution and analyzes mechanisms that possibly controlled their occurrence and preservation and thus their biostratigraphic and paleoecological value using samples from nine wells near the depocentre of the Beaufort-Mackenzie Basin. Approximately 17.4 km of stratigraphic section were sampled. Samples, derived from well cuttings, were studied in 30-60 m intervals from the first downhole occurrence of agglutinated foraminiferal specimens to the total depth of the well.

Dans ce document, nous examinons quelques-unes des questions juridiques qui ont trait à l'orientation sexuelle au Canada. Workers' Compensation Board of British Columbia. Compensation Services Division. Richmond, BC : The Division, 1994. 151 p. : ill.
MICROLOG 95-02242 (2 fiche)

The primary role of the Compensation Services Division is to assist injured workers in their return to work through the timely adjudication of their claims and the provision of vocational rehabilitation services when needed. The performance reports provide a working tool for staff and management to identify service targets and measure performance. They are designed to quantify outcome information for each Service Delivery Location and to the Division as a whole. In addition to measuring performance, the reports aid in identifying service bottlenecks and tracking the impact of changes in process.

Performance review of grass swale-perforated pipe stormwater drainage systems

MICROLOG 95-02275 (2 fiche)

Study to assess the performance and potential use of grass swale-perforated pipe systems. The study evaluated past experience and currently employed design practices in Ontario; interviewed pipe manufacturers; and monitored the installation of a typical system. A modelling approach was developed for the hydrologic and hydraulic analysis of such systems that combined related aspects of grass swale characteristics with the perforated pipe characteristics and also accounted for the effects of soil infiltration capacity, trench dimensions, pipe perforation dimensions, and density. Hydraulic laboratory tests were conducted to relate the infiltration flow rate out of the pipe to flow depth, pipe slope, and perforation size and configuration. Based on the derived modelling approach, a computer model was developed to serve as a tool for the design of grass swale-perforated pipe systems.

Attempts to show a positive link between creative experiences and reduction of learning disabilities within the profile of identified learners. Provides analysis of the profiles of children with learning disabilities. Offers definitions of creative activity, including an analysis of such concepts as oscillating reflection, artistic cognition, and artistic literacy. Connections are made regarding the particular nature of artistic experiences that are especially helpful. Findings suggest that the arts provide excellent alternative experiences for learning disabled students in all areas of the curriculum, especially in language proficiency. The special value of artistic experience in the primary years is seen in the students' early development of positive academic self-image. Experiences in dance, drama, and music give students a sense of both group accomplishment and unique individual achievement. The negative self-image reinforced by the school system is thereby alleviated.

This inquiry into power is written for women educators in the elementary system. Following the introduction, chapter 2 is a comprehensive review of the literature on power, revealing information from theoretical perspectives and the limited research base. An educational setting is established for power in chapter 3, comparing the nature of education to the business world, from which most of the research stems. Chapter 4 focuses on sources of power and effective power tactics for women educators and chapter 5 concludes the discussion.

Information from a 1990 survey conducted by one of the New Brunswick forest products marketing boards, the Carleton-Victoria Wood Producers Association, was used in the analysis. The original 17-variable model was reduced to five variables that had the same degree of accuracy as the original 17-variable model. Compared to a similar province-wide analysis, this study indicates that regional differ-

Les gouvernements étant en quête de moyens pour comprimer leurs déficits, ils tentent d'alléger leurs coûts en matière d'éducation en faisant assumer une partie de ceux-ci par les étudiants ou leurs parents. Dans ce document, nous examinons d'abord la première proposition qui ait été faite en matière de prêts étudiants à remboursement fondé sur le revenu. Nous étudions ensuite les tentatives de mise en vigueur de tels prêts qui ont eu lieu par le passé et qui ont actuellement cours aux États-Unis, en Australie et en Nouvelle-Zélande. Enfin, nous nous penchons sur les enseignements que le Canada pourrait tirer de ces expériences et tentons de prévoir comment la formule pourrait s'appliquer au pays.

Ce document porte sur l'application d'un modèle logit à la prédiction de la probabilité qu'un propriétaire foncier se livre à des activités d'aménagement forestier en fonction de certaines de ses caractéristiques. L'information tirée d'une enquête réalisée en 1990 par l'un des offices de commercialisation des produits de la forêt du Nouveau-Brunswick, le Carleton-Victoria Wood Producers Association, a servi aux fins de cette analyse. Le modèle original à 17 variables a été réduit à 5 variables possédant le même degré de précision. En comparaison d'une analyse similaire réalisée à l'échelle de la province, l'étude révèle l'existence de différences régionales lorsqu'on tient compte du type de propriétaires susceptibles de se livrer à des activités d'aménagement.

Prince Edward Island major event study, strategic plan : final report

Submitted by the Economic Planning Group of Canada ; in association with Waterfront Festivals Inc. Charlottetown : Dept. of Economic Development and Tourism, 1994. xl, 131 p. MICROLOG 95-02410 (2 fiche)

This study developed an economic impact model and methodology that could be used to determine the economic value of staging major festivals and events in Prince Edward Island; an event evaluation model, with supporting methodology, for use in prioritizing events for assistance; and a strategy for the future development and marketing of event tourism. The study was completed between January and June 1994, using information from telephone interviews of festivals and events to collect basic information on their programs, budgets, and marketing activities; in-person interviews with the management of many major festivals and events in the province and elsewhere; and representatives of the tourism industry. The strategic plan developed addresses overall directions, priorities, detailed program recommendations, development, human resource development, marketing, corporate sponsorship, awareness, support programs, and proposed delivery structure.

Principes de la responsabilité totale de l'emballage au Canada

Canada. Groupe de travail sur la responsabilité totale de l'emballage. Ottawa : Conseil canadien des ministres de l'environnement, Groupe de travail national sur l'emballage, 1994. 12, 11 p. Bilingue (Principles for packaging...). MICROLOG 95-02119 (1 fiche)

L'emballage s'est transformé en moyen raffiné qui permet aux manufacturiers de livrer leurs produits aux consommateurs, souvent sur de longues distances, tout en occasionnant le minimum de dommage, d'altération et de détérioration. L'emballage fournit des renseignements pertinents concernant le produit qu'il contient, livre des messages publicitaires et fournit aux consommateurs les directives d'utilisation et un niveau élevé de sécurité. Les principes qui sont spécifiés dans ce rapport ont été développés afin qu'ils s'appliquent à tous les types de matériaux d'emballage et à tous les types de déchets d'emballage (industriel, commercial, institutionnel et résidentiel) et afin qu'ils demeurent assez flexibles pour leur adoption dans toutes les juridictions.

Canada. Packaging Stewardship Group. Ottawa : Canadian Council of Ministers of the Environment, National Task Force on Packaging, 1994. 11, 12 p. Bilingue (Principles of la...). MICROLOG 95-02119 (1 fiche)

Packaging has developed into a sophisticated medium which allows manufacturers to deliver their products to consumers, often over great distances, with a minimum of damage, spoilage or deterioration. It provides clear information regarding the products it contains, delivers appropriate sales messages and provides the consumer with convenience and the highest degree of safety. The principles contained in this report were developed to apply to all types of packaging materials and all types of packaging wastes (industrial, commercial, institutional, and residential) and to be flexible enough to be adopted in any jurisdiction.

Pendant de nombreuses années, l'industrie nucléaire canadienne s'est vantée de pouvoir fournir aux consommateurs de l'électricité de façon sécuritaire et fiable, à faible coût. Si l'énergie nucléaire s'est avérée une source d'électricité relativement sécuritaire, son rendement sur les plans de la fiabilité et des coûts a sensiblement fléchi ces dernières années. Dans ce document, nous examinons la détérioration du rendement de l'industrie nucléaire pour ce qui est des coûts en comparant cette industrie à son concurrent traditionnel dans la production d'énergie. Nous présentons aussi une ventilation des coûts totaux en leurs divers éléments et évaluons les principaux facteurs qui expliquent les tendances ayant contribué à la détérioration de la position concurrentielle de l'industrie nucléaire : augmentation des coûts en capital initiaux, difficultés techniques imprévues entraînant des coûts en capital supplémentaires et hausse des frais d'exploitation en raison du rendement plus faible que prévu des réacteurs.

Tous, aussi bien du Nord que du Sud, nous partageons la même angoisse au sujet du réchauffement de la planète et de l'amincissement de la couche d'ozone. La première partie de ce document donne quelques exemples des problèmes créés par le Nord et auxquels le Sud risque de donner une nouvelle dimension, ainsi que des problèmes du Sud qui présentent de graves risques pour tous. La seconde partie montre comment les scientifiques des pays en développement peuvent contribuer à résoudre les problèmes mondiaux. Le tiers-monde y apparaît comme un immense laboratoire où prennent forme certaines solutions aux problèmes planétaires. Enfin, le dernier chapitre indique comment on peut aider les scientifiques des pays en développement à contribuer leur pleine mesure à la solution des grands problèmes planétaires. CA DE EX SC

La propagande incitant à la haine et préconisant l'inégalité raciale a probablement toujours existé ; toutefois, les trente dernières années ont été le témoin d'un débat généralisé sur ce qu'il convient de faire à ce sujet, si tant est qu'on y puisse quelque chose. Data sharing among departments and agencies of government will reduce costs of information collection and administration. It will improve service to the public by ensuring government information is accurate. It may also improve the effectiveness of the design and evaluation of government programs. Thus, there is a considerable value in sharing data within government. Our society in New Brunswick and Canada respects individual rights to privacy. Such rights are protected under the Charter of Rights and Freedoms. The OECD guidelines on the protection of privacy outline a set of principles that should govern the collection and use of personal information. Canada is a signatory to the OECD document. Thus, protection of individual privacy is a paramount concern. This study deals with both these issues.

Les garanties juridiques prévues par la Charte figurent aux articles 7 à 14, qui portent notamment sur le droit à la vie, à la liberté et à la sécurité, la protection contre les fouilles, les perquisitions et les saisies abusives, les droits des personnes mises en état d'arrestation ou de détention, les exigences relatives à certaines affaires criminelles et pénales, et la protection contre les traitements ou peines cruels et inusités. Les tribunaux ont maintenant rendu un grand nombre de décisions au sujet de ces articles. Dans ce document, nous nous attachons surtout aux jugements importants rendus par les cours d'appel provinciales et par la Cour suprême du Canada en ce qui a trait à la protection contre les fouilles, les perquisi-

Le partage des données entre les différents ministères et organismes du gouvernement réduira les coûts de collecte et d'administration de l'information tout en améliorant le service au public en garantissant que l'information dont dispose le gouvernement est exacte. Il pourra également se traduire par une conception et une évaluation plus efficaces des programmes gouvernementaux. Par conséquent, le partage des données au sein du gouvernement offre des avantages considérables. Tant au Nouveau-Brunswick qu'au Canada, notre société est respectueuse des droits des particuliers à la protection de leur vie privée. Ces droits sont protégés par la Charte canadienne des droits et libertés. Les lignes directrices de l'OCDE sur la protection de la vie privée énoncent une série de principes qui devraient régir la collecte et l'utilisation de renseignements personnels. Le Canada est un des signataires du document de l'OCDE. Par conséquent, la protection des renseignements de nature personnelle a une importance primordiale. Cette étude traite de ces deux questions.

The Commission on Resources and Environment (CORE) was given the legal responsibility in 1992 to develop a strategy for land use and related resource and environmental management. After two years of public consultation and research, the commission set out in this report and three companion volumes a provincial land use strategy, supported by a Sustainability Act. This report describes sustainability actions in B.C. from 1910 to the present and why a Sustainability Act is needed; the provincial land strategy to date, including current initiatives and public participation; and the development of the Sustainability Act. A glossary is included. Appendices include a provincial land use charter and land use goals.

The Canadian Labour Force Development Board (CLFDB) created the Task Force on Transition into Employment in February 1992 to deal with the policy and program issues surround the transition of unemployed people into paid employment. It includes both young people making the transition from school to work and adults re-entering the workforce or entering it for the first time. This report describes the development of a coherent Canadian model for transition into employment. It presents the conceptual framework used as the starting point for the model's development; describes the Canadian environment within which transitions occur and each constituency's views on how transitions work today; and examines in detail each of the elements that form a coherent transition system, including labour market information, income and other support, education, training, career and management counselling, prior learning and skills assessment, and labour market practices.

Numerous species of parasitic flies and wasps attack spruce budworm (SBW) throughout its geographic range and at all immature stages, but little is known about these dynamics in northern Alberta. This note gives the results of a study on rearing parasitoids from northern Alberta. Parasitoids sampled lay eggs on SBW larvae, live as larvae in the host body, and emerge from older larvae or pupae. Sampling techniques therefore include examination of the incidence of egg laying, the presence of parasitoid larvae in the host, and the emergence of adult parasitoids. In this study, large numbers of SBW larvae were individually reared to obtain adult parasitoids, but extensive dissection of SBW larvae was avoided, and results were obtained using limited time and materials. By Tsuneo Yamazaki. Toronto : Ministry of Environment and Energy, Program Development Branch, 1994. 24 p. : ill. ISBN 0-7778-2456-6 MICROLOG 95-02031 (1 fiche)

COM DEV has developed a space industry approved plating facility whose production processes center on zinc, nickel, copper, and silver plating as well as a smaller scale capability in gold and rhodium. The new waste treatment system is intended to handle current and future requirements from the plating facility as well as those of the company as a whole. This report gives an overview of the waste management options considered by COM DEV, aimed at source reduction, recycling, and treatment and disposal. The report describes the implementation, installation, and commissioning of the waste management facilities; the technical and financial aspects; the recovery of zinc, nickel, copper, and silver; and a comparison of the objectives vs the results.

Réduction des tarifs douaniers sur les produits soumis à la gestion de l'offre en vertu du GATT et de l'ALÉNA

Le conflit entre le plan de réduction tarifaire du GATT et les dispositions de l'ALÉ et de l'ALÉNA selon lesquelles l'élimination complète des tarifs entre le Canada et les États-Unis doit avoir lieu d'ici à 1998 soulève des questions au sujet de l'accord qui a préséance. Les gouvernements du Canada et des États-Unis ont des opinions divergentes sur la question. Le Canada avance que les dispositions du GATT sur la réduction des tarifs ont préséance, alors que les États-Unis soutiennent que les tarifs imposés aux termes du GATT devront être réduits, puis éliminés, conformément à l'ALÉNA. Dans ce document, nous examinons les articles pertinents du GATT et de l'ALÉNA et exposons les arguments que le Canada et les États-Unis pourraient invoquer pour soutenir leur point de vue respectif.

The conflict between the GATT tariff reduction provisions and the NAFTA/CUSTA requirement for the complete elimination of all Canada-U.S. tariffs by 1998 raises questions as to which agreement takes precedence. The Canadian and U.S. governments have differing views on the matter. Canada takes the position that the GATT tariff reduction provisions prevail, while the U.S. contends that the tariffs imposed under the GATT will have to be reduced and eventually eliminated in accordance with the NAFTA. This discussion paper reviews the relevant GATT and NAFTA articles and raises some of the possible arguments on both sides of the issue.

Les relations fédérales-provinciales influent sur la plupart des grandes activités du gouvernement au Canada et elles sont en évolution quasi constante. Ces changements trouvent principalement leur source dans l'élection de nouveaux gouvernements qui ont des priorités politiques nouvelles et une conception neuve du fédéralisme, dans l'environnement social et politique, qui suscite constamment de nouveaux problèmes et de nouvelles questions, et dans l'expérience de relations inter-

Ce document porte sur deux propositions récentes de restructuration des rôles économiques fédéraux-provinciaux, fondées toutes deux sur des facteurs purement économiques. Ni l'une ni l'autre ne modifierait sensiblement la répartition actuelle des pouvoirs de dépenser. La première ne ferait que repartager les pouvoirs d'imposition et de taxation, tandis que l'autre consisterait en des gros prêts consentis par le gouvernement fédéral aux provinces et assortis de conditions applicables aux réductions des paiements de transfert et au financement des déficits provinciaux. Les deux propositions peuvent être considérées comme des réactions à un déséquilibre vertical imminent des ressources dont disposent les deux paliers de gouvernement. CA CO DE PA SS

Ce document examine la modification des systèmes du gouvernement du Canada pour ce qui est de la reddition des comptes, des rapports entre l'exécutif et le Parlement et de la gestion des dépenses. L'Étude générale 375F donne un aperçu des efforts faits antérieurement dans le sens d'une réforme de l'administration publique, et notamment du legs des commissions royales Glasse et Lambert. Dans la conclusion de ce document, nous juxtaposons les buts que constituent l'efficacité, la responsabilité et la démocratie dans le dessein de mettre en lumière certains des choix délicats et les concessions que suppose le nouveau pas à franchir dans la voie de la réforme des systèmes.

Au Canada, comme dans d'autres pays, des membres de la classe politique, des fonctionnaires, des universitaires, des membres du secteur privé et d'autres citoyens se sont engagés dans un important examen de la fonction du gouvernement dans la société et de la façon dont cette fonction peut le mieux s'exercer. Ce document pose les éléments de base d'une réflexion sur la réforme gouvernementale dans le contexte actuel. On y analyse une démarche qui se déroule actuellement en vue de modifier le cadre administratif du gouvernement fédéral et qui reprend des thèmes antérieurs. On y donne un aperçu des deux éléments suivants : traits saillants des tentatives de réforme administrative au palier fédéral au Canada depuis 1962, et la réforme gouvernementale dans le contexte actuel.

In Canada, as in other countries, politicians, public servants, academics, members of the private sector, and other citizens, are engaged in a serious examination of the function of government in society and how that function can best be performed. This document provides background for a discussion of government reform in a contemporary context and discusses a current attempt to alter the administrative environment of the federal government that picks up a number of the earlier themes. It provides an introduction to the following points: highlights of administrative reform attempts at the Canadian federal level since 1962, and government reform in a contemporary setting.

This document concentrates on changes to the accountability, executive-parliamentary, and expenditure management systems of the Government of Canada. It documents previous efforts to achieve public administration reforms, starting notably with the legacy of the Glassy and the Lamber Royal Commission. In the concluding section of the paper, the goals of efficiency, accountability and democracy are juxtaposed, with the intent of bringing out some of the challenging choices and potential tradeoffs involved in taking systemic reforms to the next step. Topics covered are: approaching the question of public sector reform; the meaning of ministerial responsibility in the 1990s; restructuring the executive political management system; managing and controlling the expenditure process; and convergences and tradeoffs on the road to reform.

Tax incentives alter the after-tax cost of research and development (RD) investments. RD expenditures entitle those making them to tax deductions and credits, which lower the net cost of RD. Those deductions and credits in turn represent a tax expenditure, or opportunity cost for the government. Tax expenditures may thus serve as a substitute for budget expenditures or as a complement to direct financing methods but they are much more difficult to evaluate and control. This paper examines the basis for government intervention in this area and gives a historical overview of tax incentives for industrial RD. It also includes some comments on the advantages and disadvantages of tax incentives for scientific research.

The system, as manufactured by Frenger Canada Inc., has proven successful in commercial and institutional markets and its modification to residential use could add a new market segment to the company's operation while providing an alternative approach to heating for builders, designers, and homeowners. Project work included an industry survey to determine the acceptable requirements for the system in the residential marketplace; design work that incorporated the requirements of the industry survey and addressed the relevant peculiarities of residential construction; product testing to determine the physical acceptability of the radiant panel selected for residential applications; and economic analysis to ensure costs would not prohibit the marketing of the system in the residential environment. model tests and full scale trials were conducted with the CCGS TERRY FOX, a twin screw icebreaker with a multi-chine hull form and CP propellers. The report reviews the hydrodynamic theory of ship surge motion in open water and in ice and provides background information on SI theory and the methodology used by the SI system. It then describes the testing of a 1:21.8 scale model of the MV KALVIK, sister ship of the CCGS TERRY FOX, including self propulsion tests and both open water and in-ice towed resistance tests; and the full scale trials conducted on board the CCGS TERRY FOX during March 1994, including acceleration tests in both open water and in ice. It then compares the SI results obtained from the TERRY FOX trials with those obtained from trials conducted in the Beaufort Sea in 1991 and draws conclusions and provides recommendations on the SI system.

Prepared by Peter Friedrichs ; prepared for Transportation Development Centre, Policy and Coordination, Transport Canada. Ottawa : Thompson-Hickling Aviation Inc., 1992. iv, 93 p. : ill., Bibl. MICROLOG 95-02376 (2 fiche)

Most of the modelling efforts in the past have focused on the airport and terminal components of air navigation systems, with relatively little attention given to the analysis of the national airspace connecting these because of lack of congestion. However, projected air traffic growth is beginning to cause some concern. This review and evaluation of existing aviation-related models was initiated to determine their applicability to modelling the national airspace system for planning and design purposes. The models were assessed for their ability to evaluate the effect of increases in traffic volume on system workload, capacity, and delay; and the impact of changes to procedures and/or airspace design on system performance. The report includes screening criteria such as whether or not it was a model, whether or not it was validated, its currency, and its design application. For models meeting the initial criteria, a further investigation was made to determine their ability to meet the desired capabilities of an airspace system planning and design tool.

The SA-15 class are 15,000 DWT Soviet cargo vessels built for year round operation in the Soviet Arctic. In 1989, an opportunity arose to test this hull form in Canada and develop a new form based on the Melville Bow successfully fitted to the 28,000 DWT OBO vessel MV ARCTIC. The new bow form for the SA-15 vessels was designed in spring 1989 and model tests for the existing and new bow form were conducted in May 1989 in conjunction with numerical performance prediction analysis using the Carter hull/ice interaction model and a new performance prediction method. This report describes the results of the model tests, the use of the numerical simulations, and the full scale prediction. Appendices provide model lines plans, the Melville and Carter performance predictions, and raw model test data.

Describes the results and implications of the author's attempt to develop courses for secondary school students involved in individualized study. The author and his graduate students heard presentations by staff from various experimental schools, took part in seminars dealing with 4-mat theory, and looked at developmental characteristics of the age group of students for whom they were designing the program. Participants also discussed appropriate motivational devices and learning formats.

Les sanctions demeurent un élément important des relations internationales modernes, bien qu'on ne s'entende pas sur leur efficacité à persuader des États de mettre fin à des actes agressifs ou de modifier des politiques que l'opinion publique mondiale réproche. Dans cette étude, nous traçons un historique des sanctions, puis nous examinons leur rôle dans le nouvel ordre mondial ainsi que la position du Canada à leur égard. Nous mettons l'accent sur le recours collectif à des sanctions par des membres de la communauté internationale, plutôt que sur des cas isolés d'imposition de sanctions par un pays par suite d'un différend commercial ou frontalier avec un autre.

Sanctions remain an important feature of modern international relations, although views differ as to their effectiveness in persuading states to cease aggressive acts or to change policies that world public opinion finds objectionable. This study considers the history of sanctions, their role in the new world order, and Canada's position. The emphasis is on the collective use of sanctions by members of the international community rather than on cases where one country imposes sanctions on another as a result of a trade or boundary dispute.

Être sans abri, c'est ne pas avoir de toit au-dessus de la tête, mais c'est aussi beaucoup plus. L'absence de logis coupe l'individu du reste de la société, l'empêche de jouer un rôle dans la collectivité et lui nie toute vie privée et toute sécurité. Ce document se penche sur les sans-abri au Canada. Il aborde principalement la définition des sans-abri; le dénombrement des sans-abri; la composition de la population de sans-abri; la pénurie de logements abordables; les solutions au problème des sans-abri; et, les mesures parlementaires. The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms came into force on April 17, 1982. The legal rights guaranteed by the Charter are contained in sections 7 to 14. These sections deal with such matters as the right to life, liberty and security; the right to be secure against unreasonable search and seizure; the rights of an accused upon arrest; the right of an accused to certain proceedings in criminal and penal matters; and the right not to be subject to cruel and unusual punishment. There are now a great number of decided cases dealing with these actions. This paper concentrates on significant decisions of the provincial courts of appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada with respect to the provisions relating to search and seizure, arrest and detention. Second generation ice navigation system implementation, phase III : final report

Prepared for Transportation Development Centre, Policy and Coordination, Transport Canada ; authors, Charles Gauthier and Charles G. Marton. Ottawa : Canarctic Shipping Company Ltd., 1993. xiv, 45 p. : Ill. MICROLOG 95-02386 (1 fiche)

Canarctic recently completed the five-year ship-board ice navigation support system (SINSS) program to develop an ice intelligence system for ice class vessels to enable them to safely and efficiently navigate through heavy sea ice conditions. The program resulted in a number of innovative ideas that could not be tested on the SINSS hardware base. In response to evolving computer hardware, a second generation ice navigation system (G2) began development. Phase I produced the design of the system and a prototype hardware platform, while Phase II developed software to implement the functions required to receive, manipulate, and display SAR imagery. In Phase III, the remaining functionality necessary to perform rudimentary ice navigation was completed and a field trial was conducted to verify and validate the implementation. This report discusses the changes and upgrades in the system resulting from the field trial. A detailed description of the user interface is given and recommendations are made for future developments. CA ND PS SC TR

There are two basic legal aspects to the issue of sexual orientation: one is the prohibition of discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, which is primarily designed to ensure that lesbians and gay men are not discriminated against; the second involves the recognition of same-sex relationships, and the extension to them of benefits and rights equivalent to those accorded to heterosexual relationships. This paper reviews some of the legal issues related to sexual orientation in Canada. The emphasis is on the federal level and Parliament, but reference is also made to developments at the provincial and local levels, and in the private sector. The paper is concerned only with legal developments and issues. CA CI DE JU SA SS

In 1992, a set of biophysical criteria for shellfish culture in British Columbia was developed, representing a first step in standardizing techniques for shellfish culture capability evaluations. These techniques and protocols have been applied within this report as a case application to demonstrate how they can be used for inlets and passages to classify their shellfish culture potential. The resulting information can be used for land use planning exercises, land claim negotiations, or where to focus site-specific feasibility studies. The report contains an appraisal of shellfish culture capability for Clayoquot Sound based on information acquired through an extensive oceanographic survey conducted in summer 1992 and winter 1993. Shellfish culture capability appraisals for potential bottom culture and deepwater (suspended) culture areas of the sound are provided, and a summary of the regional appraisal by major waterway is given, discussing areas classified as good, medium, poor, and not advisable. Le Syndrome d'immunodéficience acquise (sida) est une maladie transmissible fatale, de proportions pandémiques, causée par le virus de l'immunodéficience humaine (VIH). Il n'existe pas encore de vaccin, ni de traitement vraiment efficace contre le sida. Dans certaines villes canadiennes, le sida vole plus d'années potentielles de vie aux jeunes hommes que le cancer, les maladies du cœur ou les accidents. Le sida se distingue des autres maladies, entre autres parce qu'il fait intervenir des phénomènes sociaux, juridiques et politiques complexes qui ont des répercussions sur les dimensions médicales et scientifiques de la maladie. Dans ce bulletin, nous examinons succinctement certains des aspects juridiques du sida : la discrimination, l'immigration et les visites au Canada, la situation dans les prisons fédérales, le droit pénal et les procès civils. Two sequential projects were implemented in boreal mixedwoods in Alberta. Project 1480, initiated in 1988, tested the planning and application of silvicultural and harvesting systems designed to protect immature (understory) white spruce during the harvest of aspen overstory, realize the growth potential of residual spruce, and encourage aspen regeneration. Silvicultural prescriptions were based on a two-stage harvesting and tending stand level model. Project 8032, initiated in 1992, tested the effectiveness of a range of silvicultural and harvesting systems in reducing wind damage to residual spruce on moist-to-wet sites after harvest of the deciduous overstory. The project included studies of harvesting costs, productivity, mixedwood growth and yield, aspen regeneration, wind damage, and wind behaviour within cutblocks. This report describes each of the projects, giving background information, preliminary results, and conclusions.

Les terres domaniales du Canada comprennent à la fois les régions à terre et en mer se trouvant hors du territoire des provinces et relevant de la compétence du gouvernement fédéral. Parmi ces régions, qui couvrent environ 10,2 millions de kilomètres carrés, il y a notamment les Territoires du Nord-Ouest, le Yukon ainsi que diverses régions au large des côtes Est et Ouest ou dans le Nord. Ce document a pour objet de fournir des statistiques à jour sur les activités pétrolières et gazières menées dans les terres domaniales. Il porte précisément sur les faits saillants de l'année et le résumé statistique des terres domaniales.

The processing of sour natural gas results in the emission of sulphur dioxide (SO₂) and elemental sulfur (S₀). An assessment was carried out in 1991 to compare soil and foliar chemical properties originally measured in 1981 and 1985 in forests near two sour gas processing plants in west-central Alberta. This study was expanded to evaluate forest health and tree growth in relation to sulfur deposition in mature and immature lodgepole pine. Ten plots were established in 30 mature lodgepole pine sites classified into high, medium, and low deposition classes. Soil chemical analyses were compared from the 25 sites sampled in 1981, 1985, and 1991. Elemental S and pH were measured and exchangeable cations were determined. Total elemental analysis of the surface organic horizon (LFH) and of mineral horizons was conducted, and total nitrogen, ammonium nitrogen, and nitrate nitrogen were measured on the LFH samples in 1991 only.

Several small-scale test methods are available to determine the fire hazard of materials. Small-scale tests, however, do not always reflect full-scale fire behaviour. Over the last few years, a number of papers have been published regarding this relationship. This report reviews those publications and examines the National Fire Laboratory's test results to find a method of classifying materials under their fire hazard. Two small-scale test methods (Cone and OSU) were evaluated. A classification system, which relates cone calorimeter results to full-scale room burn results, is proposed.

This paper describes a tabu search heuristic for the vehicle routing problem with backhauls and time windows. In this problem, both pickups and deliveries occur on the same route, and deliveries always occur before the pickups. The service time at each customer is restricted to a specific time interval. Computational results are reported on a standard set of test problems, and comparisons are established with other heuristic approaches and with optimal solutions.

Tantramar career opportunities report

By Randy D. Oiling. Fredericton : Tantramar Career Opportunities Committee, 1993. xiii, 303 p. : ill., Bibl.
MICROLOG 95-02540 (4 fiche)

This report analyzes the employment trends, job experiences, career objectives and entrepreneurial interests of Tantramar residents in the 15 to 24 age category. It documents existing government agencies and programs intended to support the counselling and training needs of Tantramar youth. Finally, it examines the job skill requirements of local businesses, and evaluates the feasibility of establishing a permanent youth training and entrepreneurship centre in the Tantramar region. The recommendations contained in the document are intended to indicate the means by which Federal, provincial and municipal government agencies, as well as local volunteer organizations, can enhance the career development and employment opportunities of young people living in the Tantramar region.

En second lieu, nous nous penchons sur l'efficacité de l'administration de la TPS et comparons l'administration de cette dernière à celles de l'ancienne taxe de vente fédérale et des taxes à la valeur ajoutée en vigueur dans d'autres pays. Finalement, nous examinons les déterminants des coûts d'administration d'une taxe et établissons de quelle façon ils affectent les coûts d'administration de la TPS et comment il serait possible de les réduire.

Over the past 2 or 3 decades, North America has witnessed a revolution in attitudes towards tobacco smoking. What was once considered a normal habit has become increasingly socially unacceptable. An ever-growing number of no-smokers are much less tolerant of smoking. Government and other organizations are more receptive to lobbying efforts and are introducing bans and restrictions on smoking. This paper discusses social perceptions of tobacco use, health risks from smoking and second-hand smoke, trends in smoking behaviour, the antismoking movement, the tobacco growing industry, and government action.

This report presents a variational method for assimilating simulated altimeter data based on real Geosat data sampling that has an horizontal resolution of -110 km and a time resolution of 17 days over a relatively large domain and over a long time period. To focus on the vertical projection problem, a simple model, but having appropriate physics to describe observed dynamic process, and developed by Ikeda and Apel (1981), was adopted. Simulated data are extracted from upper layer solution of control runs of different combinations of interested parameters. The report focuses on the problems of low cross-track resolution of data, vertical projection of surface information, and reconstruction of nonlinear mesoscale features. "Simulated" data from a control run of two-layer quasi-geostrophic model are assimilated into the same model for typical individual features of unstable meanders in a jet and dipole eddies. Case studies concerning some parameters of the model were conducted. AP CA CF ND NR PS SC

This report develops a measure of aggregate private sector wealth in Canada that includes financial, physical, and human wealth, and examines the ability of this wealth measure to explain aggregate consumption. The relationship between consumption and wealth is explored both to gauge the usefulness of the wealth measures developed and to improve upon empirical consumption models for Canada. The study augments the standard EC consumption model with a comprehensive measure of wealth, thus partly bridging the gap between life cycle-permanent income consumption equations and the more empirically motivated EC consumption models based on disposable income. Discussion of ways in which the Federal and Provincial Governments in Western Canada can cooperate to improve prospects for economic growth and development. The report summarizes the current issues and opportunities involved in removing interprovincial barriers to economic development and cooperation, and updates two earlier reports on the topic. It identifies opportunities for cooperation in regulatory, licensing, and professional standards; fiscal duplication and competition; administrative of public services; procurement practices of Federal, Provincial, and Municipal Governments; provincial and regional economic development strategies; private and cooperative sector strategic alliances; and metropolitan cooperation. It also identifies economic benefits and savings and discusses the possibilities of actually achieving them. CA CO PA SS

Western Grain Transportation Act : statutory grain freight rates : Alberta origins to Vancouver/Prince Rupert and Thunder Bay, 1994-95 crop year

Edmonton : Alberta Agriculture, Food & Rural Development, Agricultural Transportation Branch, 1994. 21 p. Cover title: Statutory grain freight rates from Alberta to Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Thunder Bay. MICROLOG 95-02413 (1 fiche)

The Western Grain Transportation Act (WGTA) confers upon the National Transportation Agency the authority to prescribe the annual rate scale for the movement of western grain by rail on or before April 30th for the next crop year. This publication provides information on statutory grain freight rates from local delivery points to Vancouver, Prince Rupert, and Thunder Bay. The publication lists the local shipping points alphabetically, the railway serving the point, the mileage to port upon which the freight rate is based, the base rate scale, the total rail freight rate, the amount of rail freight rate to be paid by the federal government, and the producer share prescribed under the WGTA. This action plan is presented as a practical and concrete starting point for deficit reduction that sets as its specific goals the restoration of a strong economy and a healthier environment. The plan details the goals of an environmentally conscious deficit-reduction strategy and identifies the specific areas where subsidy reform and ecological tax reform are warranted. The plan addresses the problems of forest loss, agricultural problems, and energy and global warming both internationally and in Canada. CA CO PA SS

Wildlife research projects active in British Columbia 1993-94

By Ron Kowall and Don Eastman. Victoria : Ministry of Environment, Lands and Parks, Wildlife Branch, 1994. 20 p. ISSN 1189-5608 MICROLOG 95-01901 (1 fiche)

This information circular lists all research projects known to be active in British Columbia. It lists projects with respect to species studied, location, status, agency involvement, purpose and principal contacts; promotes communications and cooperation among wildlife researchers working in the province; and promotes greater awareness of the number of individuals and agencies conducting research. It also fosters the development of a B.C. Wildlife Research network. The projects are listed in two groups. Group one consists of studies listed in alphabetical order by the common name of a species, group of species, or generic name such as birds or seabirds. Studies orientated toward systems or groups of species or those dealing with habitats, are listed in the second group under the broad heading of topics. BC LS PR SC

Increasingly, Canadians are experiencing anger, fear and frustration with respect to crime in general, and youth crime and the youth justice system in particular. This document discusses youth crime. First, the old Juvenile Delinquents Act and its replacement, the Young Offenders Act, are briefly described. The youth crime situation in Canada, as revealed in official statistics, is then set out and followed by a discussion on fear of crime. Amendments to the YOA in 1984 and 1992 and further reforms to the Act proposed by federal parties during the recent election campaign are then presented. Finally, two differing approaches to the crime problem, crime prevention and crime control, are examined.

For many young individuals (those aged 15-24), the transition from school to work means entering the labour market relatively unskilled, inexperienced, unfamiliar with job search and unaware of the job opportunities open to them. Consequently, many of them face the possibility of unemployment during their initial years as members of the labour force. Despite the relatively high level of public attention given to the issue of unemployment, this attention seldom addresses the various types of unemployment and their underlying causes. This paper attempts to do this with respect to present-day youth unemployment.
